ome of the Sample Protection Idiots Who Come Before It.

When the tariff commission was appointed it was not expected that the country would derive any benefit whatever from its labors. It is, therefore, a clear gain that the country should get some amusement out of the transaction, as it now seems in a fair way to do. There is no question at all of scaling down the duties, but there is a question of scaling them up. The lortunate persons who enjoy the 200 and 300 per cent, duties, Lore or less, are objects of admiration and envy to the "rock" of manufacturers who only get 40, or 50, or 60 per cent, and these are importuning the tariff commission to raise their protection
